

Cedrick Andrews

Program Officer, Sunlight Giving

Cedrick has served as a program officer with Sunlight Giving, a private family foundation based in Palo Alto, since 2016. Sunlight Giving supports local, state, and national organizations that provide basic services to low-income families with children ages 0-5 in the greater San Francisco Bay Area.

Cedrick started in philanthropy with broad experience in education and economic security. He was formerly associate director at Single Stop, which operates a technology platform to coordinate access to social services. Previously, he served as program director for Meritus, and a policy associate at Institute for College Access & Success (TICAS), where he worked on financial aid and student loan policy reform.

Cedrick received an MA in policy, organization, and leadership studies from Stanford University and a BA in philosophy from Vanderbilt University. Originally from Alabama, he has lived in the Bay Area since 2007 and enjoys cycling, yoga, hiking, and exploring the restaurant scene.
